THE STAMESE AUTOPSY.

Dr. Pancoast's Report to the College of Physicians.

The Mysteries of the Connecting Link.

TWO LIVES IN TWO BODIES.

Peculiar Anatomy of Brain and Liver.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18, 1874. Your correspondent was at the meeting of the College of Physicians and Surgeons to-night, the only journalist independent of the medical proitself. The number of medical profes sional men present was exceedingly large, and the traternity were exceedingly particular that all others should be excluded.

THE BODIES OF CHANG AND ENG were lying upon a wooden table directly fronting ce, while upon a platform near were seated the committee who had conducted the autopsy, along with the regular officers of the college. Dr. Pancoast, owing to the indefatigaperseverance of whom the are indebted for their choice study to-night, occupied a middle point, and read to his gregated brethren the report. Of course it was ed with perplexing technicalities, which the orlinary reader could not comprehend, and which your correspondent is personally obliged to pass by the board. But, apart from these, the sequel vill manifest the most interesting details. The twins themselves were not pleasant to behold, their lower extremities only being covered with a slight drapery. The skin of the abdomen anterially was thrown entirely back, exposing the entrails, the opening extending down the lower extremities. The body of the one who died first was pervaded with a dark bluish tint, while corpse of the one who died last was comparatively white; showing conclusively that the blood had flowed from the living into the dead and coagulated in the veins of the latter, rendering the same, as subsequently shown, more easily to be preserved. The navel, as heretofore stated, was directly in the centre of the connecting link, no other umbilious existing.

THE NERVOUS CONNECTION of each extended only to the middle of the band, and hence a pin stuck in the one made no impression whatever upon the other. Hence when Eng awoke and found Chang dead, had he cut a lump of flesh from his brother he might saved his own life and produced no pain upon himself, because, as just stated, the construction of the nerves of the two was entirely independent, extending only to the middle of the band. There was no anterior incision made on the connecting link, all operations proceeding from the rear. The band was found to contain two pouches resting one against the other, the outlines of which might or might not have been gone around with the knife the twins were alive; that is, question of their separation is still doubtful one. There is very little nervous distribution identified with the pouches. Reflections of the peritoneal membrane occupied the interior of the band connecting with the abdomen of each, and forming the separating sacks or pouches of the membrane.

THE LIVER OF EACH individual lay close to this band, adjacent the one to the other; bence the liver of one was abnormally placed on the side contrary to that in which reposed the liver of the other. In feetal life it is conjectured that the twain had a common liver, as an injection in the mesenteric vein of the one passed into the mesenteric vein of the other. They also possessed a common navel, or umbilical cord, which until the moment of investigation was a matter ANOTHER PECULIAR PACT is that the brain of the smaller was the most acute and powerful, although he was the most dissipated of the pair. One was a folly "hall fellow well met." while the smaller one was peevish and fretful. Although the contract with the family prevents any examination of the brain, the great contrast in disposition shows the brain of each to have been totally and entirely distinct. The investigation has, thus far, not proceeded to the heart, and this organ is as yet involved in mystery, as the brain and liver of the two are disnot be a single heart.

The report of the committee, sifted down as the lateness of the hour renders it necessary, amounts to nothing more than the above. The livers, which may have once been united, are now separated, and on account of its appormality furnishes in itself a curious study. The brain of each is independent, as likewise are the hearts. The statement as to a joint existing in the middle of the band is incorrect and ridiculous, there being no division of the cartilageneous attachment of such a nature.

THEIR MODE OF RESTING IN BED. It is supposed that during life each slept upon his stomach; while the nervous independence of each is again established from the fact that while one slept soundly the other was known to be awake The cause of the blood rushing from one to the other at the time of the demise is explained in the fact that, independent of the pouches, which are simply reflections of the peritonial membrane, there exists arteries which, in case of separation during life, might have been tied, as they could have been had the one who died last cut a piece of fiesh from the one who expired first. Aside from elaborating upon these conjectures but very little was done to-night Four plaster casts were seen and many photowere near, in order to more fully explain the stages of the post-mortem. The most interesting part of the investigation is yet to comenamely, that of the pericardium or membrane which closes about the heart.

THE RUM CRUSADE.

The Methodist ladies in Hamilton, Ohio, are organizing for a raid on the 170 saloons of that city. A fund of $250 is being raised to induce Dio Lewis to visit Hamilton. Henry Scheid, a saloonist, Morrow, has filed his petition in the Court of Common Pleas against Mrs. Grim and 159 others, setting forth that he has been damaged in the sum of $1,000 by reason of the obstruction they have been to his business and praying for judgment for said sum, and that they be perpetually enjoined from further interfering with his rights. A temporary injunction was allowed by Judge Gilmore.

Eighty ladies started on the rounds to-day in Millersburg, Holmes county. Two of the saloon keepers offered to sell out at cost. All the druggists were prevailed on to sign the desired pledge.

The crusade struck McConneisville. Ohio, to-day. One hundred and forty ladies were in the procession. The druggists all came to terms, but only one of the eight saioonsts yielded. The movement opened to-day at Piqua, Onio. Forty ladies turned out. Several of the saioon keepers promised to quit the business. The crusade has extended this week to Mount Vernon, Onio, and Madisonville, Hamilton county. The last named town is but a few railes from Cincinnati. Dio Lewis publishes to-morrow the following call for a great temperance Cenvention.

Cenvention.

At an immense meeting in the City Hail, Columbus, Ohio, it was voied to call a convention of the friends of the women's temperance movement, to meet in that hail Tuestay. February 24, at two F. M. General consultation and the establishment of a Bureau are the objects of the Convention. The Bureau will supply lecturers and organizer, in brief it will supply the conditions of success. Evrycity, town, village and teighborhood in the state is invited to send delegates, haif of them should be women. If the towns where the movement is siready in progress work it would prove an important contribution. It is believed that a more important contribution is never been called in the State. In the event of the insure of any community to send delegates, any carney
